closed by a low brick wall and shaded by a dressed hedge. The town is famed for the growth of its roses. Here are some of the noblest in America, and the beautiful shrub is profusely decorated with blossoms, some of which are as large as plums. The gardens are divided by little stone paths, and the whole is a picture of beauty.

The houses are built of brick and wood, and are handsomely furnished. The streets are broad and clean, and the sidewalks are shaded by trees. The houses are all of the same style, and are built in a regular row along the street.

The inhabitants are principally of the English race, with some Dutch and German, and a few Spanish and Irish. The language is English, but the accent is that of the Dutch.

The climate is mild, and the winters are never severe. The summers are hot, but not oppressive. The rainfall is moderate, and the soil is fertile.

The chief industries are agriculture and commerce. The town is a market for the surrounding country, and has a good trade in mutton, wool, and manufactures.

The church is a large and imposing structure, built of stone and wood, and adorned with statues and paintings. The pulpit is high and imposing, and the congregation is a large and respectable body.

The town is well supplied with schools, and education is highly regarded. The streets are lighted by gas, and the lamps are numerous and well arranged.

The town is well supplied with public buildings, and has a good supply of water. The streets are clean and well paved, and the sidewalks are shaded by trees.

The inhabitants are polite and well-bred, and the town is a favorite resort for tourists. The town is well supplied with public buildings, and has a good supply of water. The streets are clean and well paved, and the sidewalks are shaded by trees.

The inhabitants are polite and well-bred, and the town is a favorite resort for tourists. The town is well supplied with public buildings, and has a good supply of water. The streets are clean and well paved, and the sidewalks are shaded by trees.

The inhabitants are polite and well-bred, and the town is a favorite resort for tourists. The town is well supplied with public buildings, and has a good supply of water. The streets are clean and well paved, and the sidewalks are shaded by trees.